

30 DAYS OF PRE-READING PERCEPTUAL ACTIVITIES

Strong perceptual skills are necessary for reading success. Children with perceptual weaknesses will benefit from these simple and fun activities.

1 Match sequence of letters, numbers or objects	2 Do puzzle & discuss the pieces	3 Point to pictures while reading	4 Play rhyming games	5 Repeat short sequence of numbers and letters	6 Try fun tongue twisters
07 Play Simon Says using left and right	08 Sort objects by size, colour, shape	9 Fill in missing word while reading	10 Write letter on chalkboard with sound	11 Play Twister and other right/left games	12 Touch and describe object
13 Find objects in room with same shape	14 Guess object from verbal description	15 Read stories with your child	16 Choose letter of beginning sound	17 Work on simple maze and copy activities	18 Discuss objects in relation to others
19 Answer before and after questions	20 Say words with same beginning sound	21 Have reciprocal discussion	22 Draw shapes, letters, numbers on chalkboard	23 Play memory game	24 Repeat auditory sentence
25 Pick up small objects with fingers	26 Explain how words are same or different	27 Play Simon Says using right and left	28 Say words with same ending sound	29 Play the Hokey Pokey	30 Describe object to be guessed
Notes

nild canada™
National Institute for Learning Development

SEARCH & TEACH ©

How valuable would it be to have an assessment that determines the likelihood of a child experiencing difficulties when learning to read?

We'd say that's GOLD!

SEARCH & TEACH is an early intervention program that ascertains the needs of young learners before they experience academic failure and its associated emotional consequences.

SEARCH is a 20-minute individual assessment developed as a screening instrument for children ages 63-80 months focusing on skills basic to reading. For teachers, It's ideal for screening a whole class. For parents home educating, it's valuable to assess the areas of weakness in your child's reading readiness.

TEACH is a resource book of instructional methods and fifty-five task cards that build a child's pre-academic skills specific to reading and the language arts. You'll be equipped with the step by step methodology and the teaching materials necessary for intervention with children who are found to be vulnerable to learning failure as determined by SEARCH.

Visit NILDCanada.org/search-teach-workshop